JANUARY 12 & 13 | Beats on the Basin Music Series: #4 | Porch 40

Formed in 2012 at Western Carolina University, this band plays a style of highly progressive southern Funk Rock that has won over an eclectic audience everywhere. Incorporating elements from R&B, Jazz and Funk with the best of the Rock, Progressive, Indie and Metal, they cross over genres with ease.

JANUARY 19 | Beats on the Basin #5 | Footwerk

Nine months after a chance encounter on craigslist, Footwerk was born. The vocal frontline 'friend-zone' power couple of Mel and Kyle hails from DC and London, respectively. They've dubbed their sound 'Indie Pop', billed their shows as 'One Night Stands' and labeled their brand of fan interaction 'No Strings Attached'. The band is a reflection of the instant gratification generation; a 'Casual Encounter' is one-click away...

JANUARY 26 | Beats on the Basin Music Series: #6 | Super Doppler

A new name on a familiar sound. This psychedelic rock band from Norfolk Virginia may be better known to some as "Major and the Monbacks."

FEBRUARY 2 | Beats on the Basin Music Series: #7 | Sun Parade

Sun Parade is a psych rock pop band based in Northampton, MA. Their personal obsessions and projects range from British folk ballads to Motown; collectively their music is most influenced by the mutineers' pantheon — The Clash, Beastie Boys, Dr. Dog, Nirvana, The Beatles.

FEBRUARY 9 | Beats on the Basin: #8 | Matt Mullins and the Bringdowns

An Appalachian Rock band that have found a niche all their own. The stories in their song are almost as diverse as the influences you hear in their music. Fueled by a driving rhythm section and a lyrical prowess of raspy voice singer/guitarist Matt Mullins and you have what groups fell to the most honest music they have ever collectively created.

FEBRUARY 16 and 17 | Beats on the Basin #9 | Ballyhoo

Ballyhoo works hard to bring rock, punk, reggae and pop all together into one unique sound that fans describe as the life of the party.

Nine years, three genres, and four records into it, Holy Ghost Tent Revival's sound has emerged as something different than anyone might have expected. The music is filled with three and four-part harmonies that recall classic 60's and 70's rock influences.
